

Samuel, the son of the grand vizier, walked into the castle courtyard wearing a flowing purple robe.

His eyes were on the flowers and the fountains, not where he was walking.

